FACULTY OF LAW The best three essays written by the female students

The topic about distrust in judiciary and number paradox of proceedings won

Students of law, Ksenija Grejić, Maja Komljenović and Jelena Kovač have won the first three prizes on the Judges' Web competition for the best essays organized for the first time. The girls have won the prizes in amounts of seven, three and thousand and half kunas. – I have chosen the topic 'The number paradox of court proceedings and distrust in Croatian judiciary' because I consider it actual and necessary because of the current situation in judiciary. I had good statistic background which I have been using extensively during my work – said 4th year student of law K. Grejić. 21 essays were received for the competition organized by Judges Web and beside the awarded topic, there were another five: advertising of the lawyers, gender equality, contemporary questions about the judiciary and problems which affect on tardiness of the judiciary. The project was founded by international donation.

PRAVNI FAKULTET Studentice napisale tri najbolja eseja Pobijedila tema o nepovjerenju u sudstvo i paradoksu broja postupaka

Studentice prava Ksenija Grejić, Maja Komljenović i Jelena Kovačević osvojile su prve tri nagrade za najbolje eseje nakon što je Sudačka mreža prvi put organizirala takav natječaj. Djevojke su osvojile nagrade u iznosu od sedam, tri te tisuću i pol kuna.

– Odabrala sam temu “Paradoks broja sudskih postupaka i nepovjerenja u hrvatsko sudstvo” jer smatram da je ona aktualna i potrebna zbog stanja u pravosuđu. Imala sam dobru statističku podlogu kojom sam se obilato koristila u radu – rekla je K. Grejić, studentica 4. godine prava. Na natječaj koji je raspisala Sudačka mreža stigao je 21 rad, a uz nagrađenu temu bilo je još pet drugih: reklamiranje odvjetnika, ravnopravnost spolova, suvremena pitanja neovisnosti sudstva i problemi koji utječu na sporost sudstva. Projekt je financiran iz međunarodne donacije. (jzp)
